Many Horses Dying.

A great many more horses than is usual are sick and dying this Summer in this county. We think much of it is due to overwork and poor care in the way of feeding &c. Good pure water and nice clean feed, such as oats, hay, &c., are more necessary at this season of the year when the weather is so very warm, to insure good health for your horses than at any other time. Soon the heavy plowing will begin again and if you find any of your horses which are not in a first class condition, you should proceed at once to procure some of Saur's favorite remedies, which are always sure to assist nature in the restoration of health in the shortest possible time, and by giving a small quantity of these remedies for a few days, you will find a very marked improvement, and if you are not satisfied that they have done your horses any good your money will be cheerfully refunded.

FULTON COUNTY TORNADO.

As Described by an Observer for the Ohio Meteorological Bureau.

The report of the Ohio Meteorological Bureau for June is just received. It says the record for that month was marked by low barometer, low temperature, and low daily average of temperature, with westerly winds and small rainfall. The most interesting item found in the report is a description by Mr. Thomas Mikesell, observer at Wauseon, Fulton county, of the tornado which passed north of there on the 24th ult. Mr. Mikesell says:

The tornado was formed about twelve miles north of here, near Lyons, and at about 2:45 p. m., when about two miles south of Phillips' Corners, it came to the ground. Its course was a little south of east. As it descended it unroofed the house of J. Stahl, on the west side of the road. A large piece of the roof was thrown about ten rods to the southeast, and other parts to the northeast. It next struck the barn of O. P. Barnes, which stood just at the south edge of the storm track, and took the roof from one side. The house (made of plank) stood a little north of the center of the track, and the whole upper part was taken up and ground to pieces. The north wall was left and the south wall taken to the floor. Mr. Barnes was jerked up by the wind and carried about five rods, passing over an apple tree, and when he dropped an apple fell on him. He was not seriously injured. A boy who was in the yard was thrown under a sled, on which, almost instantly afterward, the corncrib was dashed. The boy was but little hurt. A straw-covered shed was not touched, while a chicken house near was totally destroyed, many of the chickens being killed.

Mrs. Barnes, who was at the house, was struck on the head and breast, and badly injured. When the storm had passed, she was found in the yard unconscious. A boy who was lying on a lounge in the house, was rolled off on the floor, and the quilt taken, which was found over half a mile to the east. Some of the goods were carried nearly three miles away. After passing the house it struck the orchard, which it nearly destroyed, the trees being broken off or taken out by the roots. The track of the storm is only about twenty rods long, by ten rods wide. It was not over half a minute from the time it first appeared till it was gone. It is described as a big blue ball and roared louder than a train of cars.

Just after the tornado passed it rained very heavy with little hail. It hailed very heavy in all directions around. Some places the hail was three inches deep, and on the west side of buildings there were chunks of ice weighing ten pounds forty-eight hours after the storm. The hail extended over a tract eight to ten miles wide, by fifteen to twenty long. Some places crops were nearly ruined.

GRAND RAPIDS, OHIO, July 26, 1886.

ED. NORTHWEST.—I wish to state through your paper to the people of Henry county, that the Henry Co. Farmer's Association, who hold their annual fair on their fair grounds in Harrison twp., four miles east of Napoleon, from the 21st to 24th of Sept. next, intending, will make a special effort to have this year's work felt to the good of the people in general. We call the attention of the farmers of Henry and the adjoining counties, who feel an interest in agriculture, horticulture and improved implements, to the benefit that may be obtained by a live effort in the study of those branches in the competition of exhibition, and the beneficial results arising from such a convention of industries and the association to be had. We want to make this fair just what every farmer and others interested desire it to be, to do this it is necessary to have the co-operation of all. Let us be united in our efforts this year. Friends of the association, bring the matter before your neighbors and encourage all to come who are not yet interested, and be sure and come yourselves, bringing everything in the way of exhibits, for display and exhibition that in your judgment is desirable. Examine the premium list carefully and note that in which you are especially prepared to take part in, and make out your list as early as possible and send them to the secretary. If you have not a copy of the premium list and desire one, write to the secretary, it will be furnished promptly. The premiums are comparatively liberal and will make a pleasant and profitable competition for the best articles exhibited. A word from each friend will make it a success. Come all and be benefited socially and intellectually.

SECRETARY,

Henry Co. Farmers' Association.
